

TRAVIS W. CHILDERS

U.S. CONGRESS

Biography of Travis W. Childers

Travis W. Childers has worked hard for everything he has ever had in life. At the early age of 16 years old, Travis had to bear the burden of helping his mother and baby sister hold their household together after his father's untimely death. Throughout his high school years, Travis helped his mother and younger sister by working a full-time job at nights and weekends as a clerk at Booneville's first convenience store.

Upon graduating from high school, Travis Childers attended what was then known as Northeast Junior College in Booneville.

After getting his Associate's Degree in Business from Northeast, Travis enrolled at the University of Mississippi . In 1980, Travis graduated from Ole Miss with a Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration. He then went into the Realty business in his hometown of Booneville , Mississippi . Today, Travis Childers Realty & Associates is among the most successful real estate firms in Northeast Mississippi .

Around that same time, twenty-seven years ago, Travis married the love of his life, Tami Gibson. Today, he and Tami have two children – Dustin, a first year law student at Mississippi College , and Lauren, a freshman at Ole Miss.

Recognizing the character and leadership ability of Travis Childers, the people of Prentiss County elected him in 1991 as Prentiss County Chancery Clerk. Travis has served Prentiss County in that capacity for sixteen years. During that time, his fellow chancery clerks chose him to serve as President of the Mississippi Chancery Clerks Association. The people of Prentiss County recently re-elected him to a fifth term in office with an impressive 75% of the vote.

Travis Childers is forty-nine years old. He and his family are members of East Booneville Baptist Church .

Travis Childers' career is one of success and service - as a family man, a businessman, and a public servant. Travis knows what it takes to create jobs and make a payroll on Friday. He knows how to get things done by working across regional, governmental, and party lines, and he wants to take that North Mississippi spirit of bipartisanship and can-do attitude to Washington .

Travis Childers is ready to earn the trust of North Mississippians as their next Congressman, and he is ready to lead when he gets the job.
